CELEBRATING RAKIURA

December 2012–January 2013

HAPPY HOLIDAYS

Hope you all make it to the Stewart Island Community Christmas Party on 22 December. All are welcome: details on page 2.

The island has received some fun press recently including Food TV featuring Erica Donovan and Chook; Pearson cooking on Maori TV; Rob Emmett being clever with undaria; Vicki and friends in the Anchor ad, and Kia Ora Magazine (Air NZ in-flight read) had a nice write-up on Rakiura last month.

Congratulations to Storm and Rastus who raced motorbikes at the Burt Munro Challenge at Oreti Beach. Storm won Third overall in the Junior Solo 125 cc; Rastus won Second overall in the Post Classic pre-82.

I can't say I enjoyed being pregnant, but there were a few perks. One was wearing elastic waistband pants with impunity. Those days are over and I'm retiring my comfy trousers and purging the house of a heap more stuff including dozens of cloth nappies and lots of useful baby gear. So if you are an expectant mum check page 3 for some great deals on big belly and tiny bum items. All proceeds go to Rugrats so it's a win-win-win situation.

Finally, as wee Isla the Island Santa says (her squeals have been interpreted):

HAPPY HOLIDAYS,
MUCH LOVE AND JOY TO YOU ALL.

Scattering of Sam

by Vicki Coats

After four years of residing at Barry's house, we decided it was probably time to scatter Sam around the Island. (He would have been proud of our procrastination!). Sam's wish was to be dragged behind Billy in a paper bag until the arse gave out and he flew everywhere! This wasn't possible, alas, but we endeavoured to try and fulfill his wishes as closely as we could!

It wasn't a bad day out, everyone assembled promptly at 2pm at the Pavillion and jumped aboard the two Flight Centre vans with the stragglers being rounded up in Sinky's truck. First stop; off to the airfield. Waddsy got the hang of shaking Sam out of his box without inhaling most of him or scattering him over the onlookers! (after Bruce and Barry had managed to break in and release him!)

We toured round, going to Mapua Road, Lee Bay, Lonnekens and Observation Rock, all on Sam's route.

LETTERS

Yes the rumour is true I'm leaving the Island and moving to Christchurch to work building subdivisions. I'm off early January. As someone said to me "You have been living here for eleven years on holiday it's time to go back to work." LOL So true.

So I would like to thank you all for your support over those eleven years there are a lot of very nice people who live here and yes I will definitely miss the island. I will do my utmost to get back for as many holidays as I can maybe even move back — that I would like very much I have had a blast living here.

I would really like to thank all the people who have sponsored the Singles' Ball over the years all the helpers in front and behind the scenes. This would not have happened or been possible without your help so a big thank you to all.

But what about the Singles' Ball you say. We discussed this at the Lions and it still goes on. I will do what I can from Christchurch and the crew will do their bit here on the island. If you would like to be involved chat with Spragg, Jack or Mona. So keep those dancing shoes handy! There is a Singles' Ball page on Facebook have a looksy.

Thank you all and stay safe.

Doug Beck

S.I.N. came today: as ever a good read. Yes of course there has to be a feasibility study before the great pest eradication gets under way, and I'll no doubt be dog tucker long before then. But it was good of you to print my brother Alex's feelings about his cats — though far too many of them cleared off into wilderness doing goodness knows what damage to birdlife while at the same time zapping rats — and not coming home. The paua history by Storm Stanley, and the not-for-the-squeamish gut intake/output notes, makes me wonder whether any Stewart Islanders still owns a pressure cooker? I used to go out in my dinghy, tie her to a bit of kelp, hop over the side and collect a couple of good sized specimens for breakfast. No pounding required: into the pressure-cooker they went with a cup of water, and when the gadget bobbed up they were done. Amid much hiss and pother I got the lid off, and the shellfish were then easily forked out of their shells whole, tender all over (except for the radula that had to be nicked out). I'd then chop up the paua and process it in one of those whizz gadgets, and fry the smooth-textured goo in a little oil till browned on both sides.

Unfortunately — aue, aue, whatapaka e —the coast here is now marine reserve, so even if I still had the stamina I couldn't help myself to a modest feed. But there must be parts of the Rakiura coast that aren't off-limits. Bon appetit!

Sheila Natusch

P.S. All power to the wood-burning stove!

Gardens of Southland

Gardening and Garden visiting has increased exponentially in New Zealand. Southland has many beautiful public and private gardens. Many of these gardens are featured on various websites and publications. A group of garden owners have got together and addressed this gap and have set up a garden website <http://southlandgardens.co.nz>.

At present we have 18 gardens on the website but we are looking for more gardens to be involved. We are looking for a diverse group of gardens from small city gardens to large country gardens, formal, informal, quirky, native or exotic. The area that they would like to cover includes: Gore, Winton, Riverton, South Catlins, Stewart Island and the areas in between. The main criteria being that you would be available by appointment for people to visit your garden, be available for two open weekends one in Spring and one in Autumn. If you are interested in this project we would love to hear from you.

Stewart Islanders 'Wise Up to Weeds'

by Gail Jefferies

Locals took advantage of recent workshops to get skilled up on the weeds that could become problematic and potentially threaten the national park.

Earlier this month, Environment Southland held two 'Wise Up To Weeds' workshops on Stewart Island. The workshops were designed to help locals identify the weeds in their gardens that have the potential to 'jump the fence' and impact on Rakiura/Stewart Island.

Biosecurity Pest Plants Officer Amy Lagerstedt and Environmental Education Coordinator Nikki Tarbutt and facilitated the workshops. Amy then continued her annual monitoring and control work of Gunnera on Stewart Island during the following week.

After gathering as many weedy samples as possible, the first workshop was with the senior students from Halfmoon Bay School on the Friday afternoon. Students tested their weed identification skills first, then in pairs, selected their favourite weed to report back on to the group. It was really impressive that most of the class identified Gunnera (Chilean Rhubarb) and knew about the eradication programme for Gunnera on Rakiura/Stewart Island.

On Saturday a keen bunch of residents attended another workshop. The two hour session flew by as participants identified weeds and learnt appropriate control methods. Having examples of the weeds made this more meaningful, as everyone could look at their size and shape, and how woody or vine-like the weeds were.

Some participants were surprised by how many weeds were in their own backyards or just down the road. It was encouraging to hear that one participant plans to be 'more vigilant and energetic' with respect to weeds, and another wants to get rid of Indian Knot Weed. The feedback showed that everyone went away with an increased awareness and knowledge about weeds.

The specially produced Wise up to Weeds identification guide was well received by the participants, many taking a copy for their neighbours and family members. If you would like a copy of this identification guide or want to report the presence of a Gunnera plant on Rakiura/Stewart Island, please contact Environment Southland by emailing service@es.govt.nz or telephoning 0800 7688 45.

STEWART ISLAND COMMUNITY LIBRARY

by Kirsten Hicks

Next time you are passing bring your kids into the Library to test drive our new child sized stripey & dotted bean bags – just the perfect thing for our smaller visitors to curl up in.

No matter what our rather damp weather might be doing, Ally Eade's efforts with the heating system should mean we can now enjoy a constant 21 degrees. Thank you Mr Eade!

The Library will be closed over the Christmas break. Last day for issues is Saturday 22nd December. I'll be open again on Friday 4th January 2013. Returns can be made at any time through the slot in the wall nearest the school. The APNK wifi is up and running 24/7 so all our visitors can keep in touch with family, and the world at large over Christmas.

I'd like to take this opportunity to thank volunteers Pat King & Jenny Gell for their hard work & support this year. Because of their efforts, the popular Saturday morning session is possible. Also thank you and happy holidays to all our readers (& computer users, & jigsaw enthusiasts, & talking book listeners...).

My cup runneth over.

Thank you so much to everyone who makes the Stewart Island News happen and thrive.

THANK YOU to

Stewart Island Flights for bringing SIN here

Ship to Shore for selling SIN

The Pub and Bunkhouse Theatre who are also now selling SIN

Margaret Hopkins for doing the banking and paperwork and offering advice and support

Jamie of Southland Trader, our new printer

Joe, and Chris and Steve who help me with my computer issues and nobly try to keep straight faces during my idiotic prattle about my computer problems

Kari who makes herself available to edit if I can't

Everyone who contributes photos, articles, ideas, criticism

All the people who buy ad space

All the people who buy subscriptions

All the readers who send lovely notes

Everyone who drops coins in the box at the Shop

Finally, to the endless source of inspiration and tales small tall and wonderful all: Stewart Island.

Stewart Island Community Vision Workshop Saturday 20 October 2012 1.30pm – 7pm

40 community members gathered with some curiosity around what could be the vision for our community. Trying to develop a clear community vision for the island is important, not only to ensure that we are all on the same page, but also to present a united voice to any external organisation (for whom what we want isn't as obvious as the nose on your face) who may be making decisions that affect how we live on this island.

The workshop group discussed hopes and dreams, shaped a draft vision, gathered ideas on how to get there and formed a commitment to continue working on the vision with the community and to establish a road map for action.

The room included displays from local children on their favourite things about the Island, and wishes from 35 community members (collated prior to the workshop).

The buzz on arrival moved to focused conversations. Helen (the external facilitator) introduced the session and Kath (the school principal) gave opening thoughts. In the discussions many common themes and points of difference were found. The discussion centred around three questions:

- What connects us to the Island?
- What do we most like about this Island?
- What is the future we want for our island?

After much discussion, a picture started to emerge around Stewart Island being a place of strong identity, proud of our diversity and uniqueness, where there is a:

- Safe and connected inclusive community
- Sustainable environment which supports our community
- Stable, diverse employment and healthy economy
- Locally controlled change

Venture Southland has written some draft notes from the workshop that will help shape the "vision" for the island. These draft notes are available from any of us on request if you want to catch up in more detail on the outcomes of the workshop. In the meanwhile, we need a group of people to come together and take all of the ideas from the workshop and help shape them into something that this community can use. If this appeals to you and you would like to be involved, then please contact one of us.

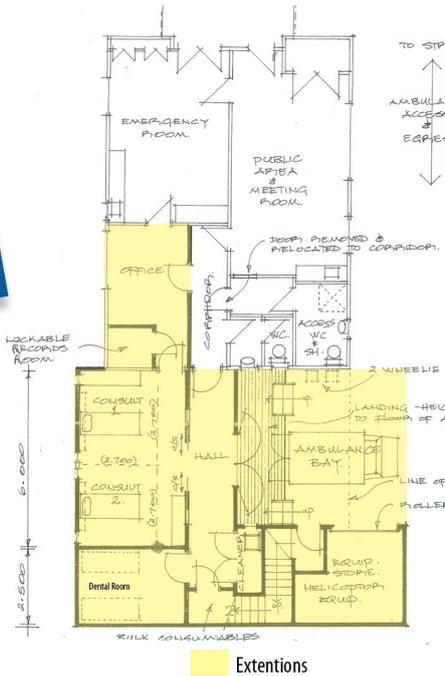

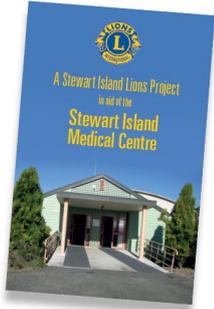

Thankyou to everyone who gave some of their time at the workshop, thanks to Emmerson Group for a very discounted professional facilitation service, to Juanita from Venture Southland and a big thankyou to the Community Trust of Southland for supporting this initiative.

Merry Christmas

Christmas and the New Year are almost here and the team at DOC would like to wish everyone a wonderful festive season. We hope that you can all find time to rest, relax and take enjoyment from having a national park literally right on your back doorstep. For those hosting visitors over the holidays, please let them know that the Rakiura National Park Visitor Centre will be open everyday throughout the holiday break, apart from Christmas Day, and staff will be only too happy to meet them and answer any queries they may have. The field centre office however will be closed from 4.30pm on the 21st December through until 8am on the 7th January, so things like fire permits will not be available during this period...

DOC / Air New Zealand Partnership

There has been a great deal of media interest in the Rakiura Track, and the island in general, since our Great Walk celebrated its 20th anniversary in November. That interest is likely to increase over the coming months as Air New Zealand releases more details about the partnership it has entered into with the Department and will hopefully have spin-offs for local businesses. As well as marketing the Great Walks as premier visitor destinations, the airline has provided a significant level of funding for biodiversity projects around some of these walks, including the Rakiura Track. Projects here are to include dune restoration, kiwi monitoring, a predator trapping programme and some species translocations. We have recently distributed information about this partnership to residents, however if you did not receive a copy and would like one, please feel free to pop into the visitor centre to collect one – or email stewartis-

landfc@doc.govt.nz and we will forward you a copy.

Clean-up effort by Geraldine High

Recently 25 students from Geraldine High School and 9 adults headed off on their annual school tramp on the North West Circuit. As part of their environmental education they learnt about the way currents move flotsam lost from boats or washed out to sea around the world and the effects on sea life. While at Mason Bay, the students undertook a massive clean-up at Duck Creek finding a huge variety of items from bits of old rope to light bulbs. Thanks to their efforts, three fadges were filled and removed. Well done, Geraldine High School."

Volunteers to boost conservation effort

Over the coming summer we will be joined by a small number of long term volunteers. These enthusiastic and committed people will be with us for 2-3 months each. They will be integrated into our biodiversity and visitor asset programmes to help us with this work. They will also spend a portion of their time helping SIRCET. We aim to provide them with a variety of practical work experiences as well as have them take away some great memories of their time spent on the island. They will be housed in DOC accommodation in the village, if you see them around the bay please make them feel welcome.

Delivery Project update

Permanent staff based on Stewart Island / Rakiura travelled across to Bluff on the Hananui earlier this month to attend a briefing in Invercargill about the Department's Delivery Review. The review aims to develop a new, effective and efficient, future focussed operating model for conservation delivery that:

- Supports the achievement of DOC's vision and outcomes
- Helps DOC achieve more conservation through working with others

- Ensures we have a consistent operating model based on best practice
  - Delivers cost savings
- A number of different models are currently under consideration, each of which would result in significant changes to the way DOC is structured. How this will affect staffing on Stewart Island in the future is still very much an unknown at this stage; however staff are endeavouring to support each other and achieve what has been set in this year's work plans.

Other items in brief:

- Improved venting has been installed on the Ulva Island toilets and sewage removal has just been completed from various front country sites.
  - Possum control has been undertaken around the Traill's Hill Block and monitoring of this work is currently underway. The contractor will be carrying out control around the forest block on the northern side of the Mason Bay to Freshwater track over the month.
  - Weed work continues around the village, with local resident Jamie Adams hired on a temporary contract to undertake the selaginella work.
  - The biodiversity team have carried out weed work at Smoky and West Ruggedy and over the next few months will check the remaining northern beaches for weeds.
  - Regular 10-day field trips into Mason Bay to carry out Marram control and other weed work will continue over the summer.
  - Volunteer hut rangers will be in residence at Port William and Mason Bay huts through until Easter.
- A restricted fire season has been imposed by the Southern Rural Fire Authority, which means a fire permit is required for all fires in the outdoors, apart from BBQs. DOC issues fire permits on behalf of the SRFA, here on Stewart Island, so please be sure to contact the Department well in advance if you require a permit as these can only be issued by staff who have been designated Rural Fire Officers.

It's not all saving Kiwi and cuddling Kakapo when you work for DOC - there can be some real shitty days ...

Church Hill Restaurant & Oyster Bar

Deanne and Chris Sara

Most of you will know Deanne from her past time on the Island, establishing Church Hill Cafe. Chris however is not as well-known and likewise not as familiar with most of you so that is a good place to start. Chris was an engineer before coming to the Island to start a new life with Deanne to re-establish Church Hill, this time as Church Hill Restaurant & Oyster Bar. He has a mechanical engineering background and is originally from the West Coast. He once, many years ago, worked in a fish and chip shop and a souvlaki shop. Apart from that he had no experience in the food industry, but after all Deanne has enough experience for them both.

Deanne and Chris met in Lyttelton, Christchurch, mid-2010, and by February 2011 were living together in Lyttelton. They were happily entrenched in life for around 3 weeks before the February 22nd earthquake turned everything and everyone upside down, figuratively and literally. The earthquake had nothing to do with their return to the Island however. It was inspired by a trip back to Stewart Island in the New Year 2012. Deanne wanted to see the restaurant and catch up with friends to see how things were going. After seeing the restaurant and with the lease due to end mid-year 2012 they started to talk about the option of returning and re-establishing Deanne's dream from so many years passed. The rest is history now, the lease expired, they returned and rebuilt the restaurant.

Thirteen years since first opening the restaurant it was due for a refit. New gear and sprucing up was required and a planned opening day of labour weekend was set. In between their return in July were a pre-planned African trip and a wedding. This of course was all to fit around the refurbishing of Church Hill. That brings you up to where Deanne and Chris are now at.

Overall the restart has gone well. There were a lot of long days and nights working to rebuild the restaurant and they really appreciate those of you who have helped in making things happen. Since opening there have been even longer days and nights. They have had their usual issues with a new enterprise but have, and continue to, work them out and above all not let them get in the way of the plan; great food, great company, and all based around local and homemade products.

It is being part of a great community that made the decision to return an easy choice. They look forward to being part of Rakiura life and community and for Chris especially he looks forward to getting to know everyone.

They look forward to contributing to the experience of the visitors and the locals and giving everyone another option for their entertainment.

So you know where they are, on the hill next to the Church, the food is still the great cooking Deanne built the place on and they both look forward to your company.

Rakiura Track celebrates 20 years as Great Walk

This week the Department of Conservation celebrates the 20th anniversary of the official opening of Stewart Island's Rakiura Track as a Great Walk, the southern-most of New Zealand's iconic walking tracks.

Numbering nine in total country-wide, the Great Walks draw thousands of domestic visitors and international tourists annually. Last summer, over 2700 people walked the Rakiura Track, with almost half of these being New Zealanders.

Stewart Island/Rakiura Field Centre Supervisor, Sharon Pasco, is effusive about the popularity of the Great Walk. "Over the years it's been great to see the track develop. Since we have been included in the nation-wide booking system, lots more people have been coming to the island and enjoying walking the track."

"It's wonderful to see families and groups of visitors here and the big advantage is, they can do the walk at any time of year."

CONGRATULATIONS LIBBY BAYNE!

Libby has recently raced in the Southland Secondary School Champs Under 17 where she was awarded a gold overall, as a gold in the scratch and derby and a second in the time trial. She then raced last weekend in the Southland Champs as an U19 where she won a bronze in the time trial.

She has just received notice that she has been selected to ride in the Elite and U19 Nationals for Southland at the end of January, which is great news yet means lots of training....

THE ISLAND BEAT

Reported Crime:

Between the 10th and 17th of November a 15 Metre length of medium Stud length chain weighing about a Tonne has been taken from the drive of Island Transport. A considerable amount of effort has been used to load and unload the chain by hand. This chain has large links and was going to be used for a mooring. If you took this chain or know who took it give Police a call.

Traffic:

A one hour walk around check on island vehicles this month resulted in the following warnings being issued:

- Expired Warrant of fitness x 13
  - Expired Licence labels x 4
  - Outside Mileage stated on Road user Licence x 3
- Wrong class of licence x 1

The number of licensed vehicles and the road worthy standard of vehicles has improved over the last four years. However as above my 'unofficial' warning (compliance) system appears not to be effective in improving road safety.

So from next month (January 2013) I will be using the official traffic compliance system that the rest of NZ uses.

What is traffic compliance?

Traffic compliance is an alternative to paying a traffic infringement fine or prosecuting for minor offences that fall within the qualification criteria.

It involves waiving a prosecution if the (owner or driver) supplies evidence to Police, through the Police Infringement Bureau (PIB) that a defect has been remedied or a requirement has been met. Traffic compliance allows the (owner driver) to redirect the fine that would have been payable, into fixing the faults or problems that caused the offence.

Who can offer traffic compliance?

Constables and authorised officers issuing an infringement offence notice (ION) have the discretion to offer traffic compliance subject to the qualification criteria.

The relevant Qualifying Criteria are:

A quick scatterby of Stewart Island Travel was in order too. After a great tour, pointing out various places where Sam had come unstuck years past, we retired back to the Pavillion with a seriously lighter box.

We had a few wines and beers and nibbly food to sustain us through the afternoon, culminating on Billy the Bus with a bottle of whiskey. Aussie Pete was in the driving seat for that; it's just as well Billy doesn't go anymore!

Thanks to everyone for turning up, Sam would have been proud!

Takahē birthday celebration
launches chick
naming competition

On the 20th November, 64 years ago Dr Geoffrey (DOC) Orbell, crouching behind a tussock high in the Murchison Mountains of Fiordland, excitedly identified a bird which had been presumed extinct for 50 years – the takahē.

As part of a day celebrating the survival of the takahē, Mitre 10 Takahē Rescue has launched a nation-wide takahe chick naming competition.

The competition is open to all members of the public and every entry goes into the draw to win a camping prize pack from Mitre 10 worth $200.

BOOK REVIEW from Sue Ford

I can't review this complex series of books properly – it's too, well, complex! I have been loaned the whole series to date: “A Game of Thrones”, “A Clash of Kings” and “A Storm of Swords” - in two parts, “Steel & Snow” and “Blood & Gold”. I didn't watch the TV version of Game of Thrones, not wanting to watch the end before I'd read it – however, I've been told that parts of the script and characters were compromised. I can't imagine any TV production being able to capture the strengths of this series anyway. But I do want to encourage you to read something completely different, even if blood and guts and fantasy are not your thing, because this is powerful writing with intimately drawn characters.

Because of the clever writing, it is difficult to distinguish if there are actual villains amongst the major characters, most are fighting literally and figuratively for what they see as right. Most fight with or for honour, they are knights, lords and ladies, a middle-class of merchants, skilled people like armourer or blacksmith, and at the bottom of the heap are the Smallfolk – the labourers, field hands, servants. It is medieval in tone, fantastic in make-up. It features countries that don't exist, but have a curious affinity with the Northern Hemisphere: cold in the North, warm in the South, exotic in the east, and oriental-sounding names from the furthest known eastly lands.

The principle family in the first book is the Starks of Winterfell, a northern province, led by Lord Eddard (Ned) Stark and his Lady Catelyn. The Stark children are 14-year old Robb (Ned's heir), younger sisters Sansa and Arya, little brother Brandon, toddler Rickon, and - equally important to the story - elder half-brother, Jon Snow. The country is ruled over by Robert Baratheon (a Henry VIII figure), and amoral and conniving Queen Cersei. In the most northerly mapped part of this country is The Wall – a monstrous wall of ice, beyond which live monstrous “things” (look, I can't tell you – it would spoil the story!). The Wall is guarded by the Night's Watch, a sinister company of men composed of men who might people a monastery, and for the same reasons - ranging from criminal complicity through to broken hearts, and with similar vows. Across the Narrow Seas, is a girl - Daenerys Stormborn Targaryen (called Dany for which I'm grateful), last of a line of people who are traditionally tied in to the world of dragons – extinct now of course. Yeah, right. She's married off to Khal Drogo, and is the strongest, most clear-sighted, most determined of all the people we have met to date (one of the serious script errors in the TV series apparently – this fiery character was depicted woodenly or blandly).

Book 2, “A Clash of Kings” was even more bloody, gruesome and tense – and even more enjoyable. I am going to have to start “A Storm of Swords” soon as I can't wait to know ‘what happens next’ – and if that isn't the mark of good writing, I don't know what is. It's as far from my usual definition of “a good read” as you can get, and yet I'm caught up in it all. And if you think it sounds too far-fetched and gruesome for you, let me tell you, persevere! It's my Pick of 2012 – I'm enjoying every complex chapter, (though it's a relief to leave the tension for short periods and turn to John Galsworthy's “Maid in Waiting”, a piece of 1920's whimsy with shades of Downton Abbey). Go on – try it this summer - if we ever get one.

Meanwhile, Merry Christmas to all, including our esteemed Editor, and may Santa bring you books! See you in the New Year with an update on A Song of Ice & Fire. And other stories.

The Follicle Chronicles - Yo Bro, how's your Mo?

A glance around the township recently may have had you wondering if the 1970s pop group "The Village People" were plotting to get back together. Not so. November is rapidly becoming known as 'Movember' and men all over the world are encouraged to grow their moustache (or 'mo') for a good cause. In doing so they raise money and awareness for mens' health issues, particularly prostate cancer and depression.

Five of our finest fuzz-free blokes bristled for the challenge to grow their Mo!

1. Graham Cowley proudly sports his handlebar moustache.
2. Chris Dawson displays his top lip topiary at Fire Brigade training.
3. Ty Jenkinson models an official Movember style, the "Undercover Brother".
4. Matt Jones shows off the handlebar moustache & mirrored-shades combo.

Unfortunately there's no photographic evidence of James Ware's moustachioed moniker, but well done to all for entering into the spirit of Movember and to those that sponsored them.

Thank you to everyone who bought a Movember raffle ticket at the Ship to Shore which raised a whisker over $200 for the Cancer Society of New Zealand.

Now We Are Six by A. A. Milne

When I was one,
I had just begun.
When I was two,
I was nearly new.
When I was three,
I was hardly me.
When I was four,
I was not much more.
When I was five,
I was just alive.
But now I am six,
I'm as clever as clever.
So I think I'll be six
now and forever.
